PCC Workshop: Leveraging South-South and Triangular Cooperation for ICPD PoA

UNFPA and PPD jointly organized a day-long capacity building program on "Leveraging South-South and Triangular Cooperation for ICPD PoA" on 11 October 2023. The program included a one-day facilitated in-person learning session, active listening in three key sessions, and a prerequisite online course on SSTC in Programming. The outcomes of the programs included a strengthened network of countries promoting SSTC, country-specific plans for pursuing SSTC, and enhanced capacity in using knowledge management tools and mobilizing resources for SSTC.

The participants were grouped into four themes to come up with recommendations after a comprehensive discussion. The themes selected for the group works included embedding SSTC in UNSDCF, effectively advocating and communicating SSTC in policies and programs, raising SSTC capacity in teams and partners, documenting SSTC partnerships, entering into actual SSTC partnerships, and accessing SSTC financial resources.

The summary discusses the role of Sustainable Social Development (SSTC) in achieving the 2030 and ICPD agendas, but also highlights the need for more investment and support. The UNSDCF recognizes the importance of SSTC, but there is a lack of investment in sustainable development, poverty eradication, economic development, and health improvement.

Strong relationships exist between country programs and UNFPA, but SSTC is not well-embedded due to weak appreciation. Finally, it is suggested that SSTC can be fully exploited as an enabler of sustainable development by anchoring it within national development policies and institutions.
